John Heinrichs Scholarly and Creative Activities Day UPDATE

In light of recent events, the SACAD committee would like to offer a simplified virtual platform for students, faculty, and staff to display and share their research and scholarly activity. We will continue accepting poster submissions and have extended the deadline to April 10th. Unfortunately, we have decided to suspend the oral presentations and art and creative works portions of the event. Below is a list of changes that are associated with the poster submissions:

- Posters will not be judged and therefore prizes will not be awarded.
- Posters will be available for viewing via a Google slide show on April 22nd. More details will follow.
- Door prizes will not be given out this year.

While we are saddened that the 15th annual SACAD event cannot happen in its full capacity, we are grateful that we can still offer an opportunity for you to share your hard work with the FHSU community. Those who have or were planning to submit an oral presentation are alternatively encouraged to submit a poster. Please let me know if you have any questions!

Poster submissions are still accepted at <https://fhsu.infoready4.com/#competitionDetail/1806323>. This announcement supersedes all details listed in the submission portal.

The College of Arts, Humanities, and Social Sciences, in collaboration with Forsyth Library, is offering an online graduate-level course, IDS 815: Introduction to Data, in the fall 2020 semester.

The purpose of this course is to present a graduate-level introduction for using research and decision-making in order to prepare professionals to work with data in their chosen field. This course will cover foundational concepts for understanding various types of data and aligning research questions with strategies for data analysis. Students will learn to gather, analyze, manage, and communicate data in accordance with ethical and legal considerations.
